

RAILROAD SEEKING TO IMPROVE ITS SERVICE

Every effort is being made by the officials of the Missouri Pacific railroad to improve its passenger service to the Southwest, and changes in the rates and conditions of travel of passengers are being announced almost daily.

Effective at once, passengers from Memphis to El Paso, Texas, can buy through Pullman tickets before starting. Hereafter, Pullman tickets will be sold only as far as Fort Worth, and reservations had to be made there for the remainder of the trip. Frequently passengers were disappointed in getting reservations from Fort Worth to El Paso, but under the new arrangements, that can not now happen.

Amusements

Loew's Lyceum.

Memphians may get all mad when they get into a telephone tangle themselves, but it's only human that they laugh at someone else in an amusing way. That's why Joe Bennett gets so many laughs with "The Telephone Tangle," a farce which opened Thursday at Loew's Lyceum.

The sketch is built on ludicrous situations arising over the indifference of an operator and the attempted conversation of six people. Bennett, again portraying "Alie Kabbie," has some clean, forceful and healthy haw-haws in his conception of the phone evil.

Memphians of the theatre are the two xylophonists composing the Ralph Stenard duo. Properly executed numbers on this instrument are a novelty for any downright melody. Ralph Stenard and the woman certainly can handle their hummers. Octavo, alto, the double voice, again returns to please. Katharine and Grindell depend largely on the latter's frank physical but get the laughs. Irwin and Seigel close with their familiar gladiator act. "The She Tiger," very properly titled, is a fascinating film of a woman's intense hate born of a love scorned.

Orpheum.

One is very much in doubt about the Orpheum's topical act for the last half, a musical affair sent out by Friedlander, under the billing of "Bones Dry." It has all the trappings of a revue, some hints of a fantasy and a dash of the burlesque, possibly too much of the latter for vaudeville. There is no sense to the plot but who cares for that, with the trappings of a musical around 100? The skit is a typical Friedlander affair for its songs which are entirely distinctive, novel and well worth while.

Six girls cavort in two dance numbers, simple enough but well executed with good teamwork. These chicks are not indifferent lookers either. Eve didn't have very much to do when the sextet tries through that Egyptian chorus.

But then it's summer, and perchance the wardrobe mistress has a sympathetic heart.

Two men, fair voices and nimble hoofs, and two women, the ingenue of double chin, fill out an acceptable cast. Well mixed "Bones Dry," with its drab set, is a good summer season piece.

Mike Ferro and Clarence Coulter are local boys. They are delegates of the Best Street negro. What more can be said. Coulter, a former usher at the Orpheum, still sings a wicked foot when it comes to dancing. Pietro is a piano-accompanied equal in ability to any who have ever appeared here. He is a true artist. Dan Bruce and Margot Duffet are back with their playlet, "Thru the Keyhole." It retains its novelty.

Blanche Sweet lives up to her name in "Simple Souls."

TUPELO AND CORINTH
IN POPULATION TILT

CORINTH, Miss., June 11. (Sp.)—Mayor Robbins, of Tupelo, hints that the secretary of the chamber of commerce is in the same catalogue as the fellow who is looking for an alibi. The following telegraphic exchange took place this morning between Secretary Sharp and Mayor Robbins when the latter read the reports from Washington regarding the population of Tupelo, is self-explanatory. Sharp's telegram: "Congratulations on your victory in showing in population. It is very encouraging to us and proves conclusively that some error was made in our enumeration. It is conceded by all that Corinth is larger than Tupelo."

Robbins' reply: "I never saw a defeated baseball team that did not lay it on the umpire. Continue to limit the great city of Tupelo; it will make a man of you."
